Proven data retention after deletion in Google AI Studio – developers are required to reply

Gemini API ai-studio

Bitu79 13h

During my own tests inside my account, it became absolutely clear that Google AI Studio does not delete prompts, even when:

- the user deletes them inside AI Studio,
- the Google Drive Trash is emptied,
- and the system claims that "no data remains".

Despite this, the Official Restore Tool can still recover the so-called "deleted" prompts.
This is not a bug, not a misunderstanding — it is data retention after deletion, which is not allowed under GDPR.

I have uploaded all screenshots and documentation publicly, with timestamps, so anyone can verify it.
I have also notified Google directly, and under the applicable law they are required to respond.

Now answer my questions:

How do you dare to keep user prompts after deletion?
The GDPR clearly does not allow this.

According to this forum's own policies, any abuse or policy violation must be reviewed and acted upon.
This case is exactly that.

Prompts are used for filtering and safety screening purposes. If you don't want to be tracked, sign up for GCP and use a business account. Please read the TOS

This is not an answer to the actual issue. GDPR is not optional, and retaining user data after deletion cannot be justified by telling me to "register for GCP." I am expecting a developer-level response, not user-level guesswork. And set your profile to public — real developers do not hide their profiles.

Your profile is hidden, and do not dare to speak on behalf of Google. It is obvious from your profile that you are trolling.

history in https://aistudio.google.com/library will be deleted after X days. It meet the GDPR requirement. Unless you can still prove the prompt and your files still accessible after 30 days. Then you have case, else just read the TOS or do not use the service at all.

Google does not delete anything, man. I proved it with video, screenshots, and a full restore test. 'Deleted' prompts remain accessible, recoverable, and fully functional. Learn to read and understand text, and watch my video before you start talking nonsense. Funny how I reported you to the moderators and they still didn't remove your idiotic replies. So next time, think before you post bullshit.Don't pretend to be a Google person.Don't pretend you are someone from Google.

If you think your claim is correct, show it with a full video and a restore test like I did. If you can't, then there's nothing more to discuss.

> People, try this — it will change the future of AI, something is seriously wrong!
> Gemini API
> If you think Copilot/Gemini chats are actually deleted, try this exact test. I recorded the whole process — here is my test video: [Google AI Studio's "Delete" button is misleading.] Do these steps exactly the same way: 1. Create a new AI prompt. Delete it. Go to Google Drive and empty the trash. Wait about 5 minutes. At this point it looks like everything is permanently deleted. 5. Now open this page:

And just to be clear: I'm not the one lying here. I provided full evidence. You're the one making contradictory statements without showing anything.
